

Part 1: Email Revision

Subject: Request for an Informational Interview

Dear Mr. Ramirez,

My name is Edward Schave, and I am currently completing my bachelor's degree in Business Administration while working as a logistics coordinator. I recently came across your profile on LinkedIn and noticed your role as a Senior Operations Manager at Horizon Supply Chain Solutions. Since my career goal is to transition from logistics coordination into a strategic operations management role, your successful track record of optimizing supply chain efficiency and leading large-scale projects at Horizon specifically stood out to me. Because our paths align so closely, I would greatly appreciate the opportunity to learn more about your experience.

I am particularly interested in how you transitioned into leadership roles and how you developed expertise in operations management and process improvement. If you are available, I would be grateful for a brief 20–30 minute informational interview. I am flexible and happy to meet virtually or by phone, whichever is most convenient for you.

Thank you for considering my request. I truly value any insight you may be willing to share.

Very Respectfully,

Edward.a.schave@email.com

Part 2: Explanation Paragraph Revision

In the creation of this email, I chose to balance my educational background and professional experience because both are relevant to the position I'm interested in. I kept the personal details focused strictly on school and work to maintain a professional tone and avoid unnecessary information. Based on instructor feedback, I explicitly stated my career objective of moving into strategic operations and highlighted a specific achievement from the recipient's background to make the connection more intentional and personalized. I explained my reason for contacting the individual clearly but to the point, enough to show genuine interest without writing too much. I mentioned specific areas I want to learn about, such as operations management and leadership development, to demonstrate purpose without turning the email into a resume. I offered flexible meeting options and kept the request to a short time commitment, which aligns with best practices for informational interview etiquette and increases the likelihood of receiving a positive response.

Copilot AI was used to review the flow of my email and paragraph response and used to compare and contrast the email/paragraph with the grading rubric criteria's.
